Fer zingué et patiné

A black metal door handle with a curved lever and a vertical plate, set against a white background. The handle is made of a dark, possibly black-painted, metal. It features a vertical rectangular plate with decorative, slightly curved top and bottom edges. Two small, dark screws are visible on the plate, one near the top and one near the bottom. A curved lever is attached to the center of the plate, extending horizontally to the right. The lever has a smooth, slightly curved shape. The entire handle is set against a plain white background.
